Pan-India Academic Rollout | July - August 2026

Venue : Om Vilas Resort, Varanasi

Date : 12th-13th September 2026

Program Overview

Nutrition and respiratory tract infections remain among the most frequent reasons for pediatric consultations across India. Appropriate nutritional interventions during childhood support optimal growth, immune competence and long-term health. At the same time, evidence-based management of respiratory tract infections is essential for improving clinical outcomes and promoting rational antibiotic use.

CPD Gurukul has developed the Pediatric Clinical Pearls National Series to provide practising paediatricians with practical, evidence-based clinical updates through expert lectures, interactive case discussions and peer-to-peer learning.

CPD Objective

To enhance pediatric clinical practice by translating current evidence into practical strategies for nutritional optimisation and evidence-based management of respiratory tract infections.

Learning Objectives

At the end of the programme, participants will be able to:

- Assess childhood nutritional status systematically.
- Optimise nutritional recovery for healthy growth and immunity.
- Recognise common pediatric respiratory tract infections.
- Apply evidence-based diagnostic and therapeutic approaches.
- Practice rational antimicrobial prescribing.
- Integrate practical clinical algorithms into everyday pediatric practice.
